GAMERLOG USER GUIDE

Gamerlog is an attempt at creating a user-friendly internet database for video games, in the spirit of IMDb and designed to help fans explore the world of gaming.

Gamerlog lets you keep track of every game you've played, so you can instantly recommend one the moment someone asks, or check comments on a game you've just heard about. We aspire to be a global community of gaming fans who live to discuss, rate and rank what we play.

In Gamerlog, you can:

- Mark the games you've heard about and want to play and they will appear on your profile page

The To-Play List, lets you keep a list of games you want to play. You can start by browsing New with Friends on our homepage to see the community trends and mark a few games you want to play yourself.

If you mark a game as Played, we'll move it from your To-Play List and add it to your Played titles.

- Keep track of the games you've played

Try visiting our Popular with Friends section and marking a few games you've played.

When you've added some games, you can find them in your profile. As you add more content, your profile starts to reflect your taste.
- Create a list of your favorite games

Lists are a great way to share a collection of related games, or to rank what you've played. It's fun to welcome suggestions for your lists from other members.

- Leave ratings on the games you've played and share your opinion about your favorite titles

Read reviews of games you like (or hate), check out the community's opinion on new games you haven't played yet and share your own reviews and comments
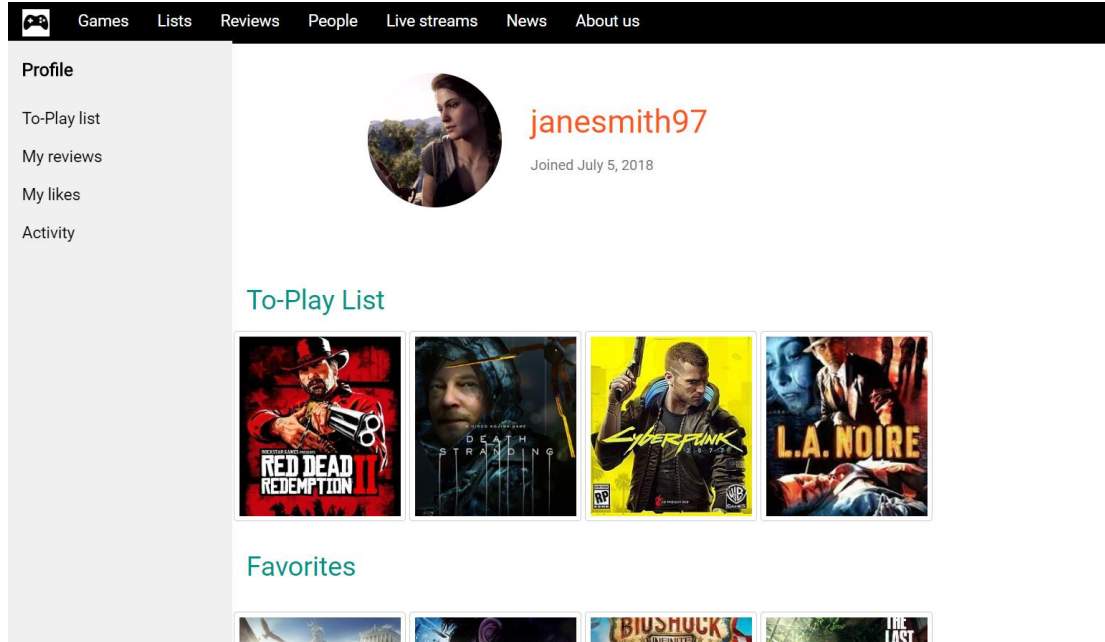

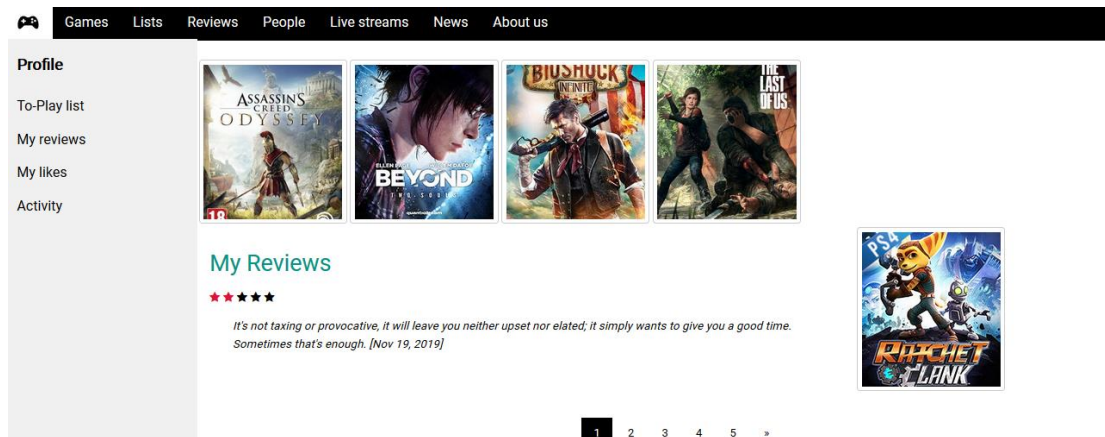

Our homepage (link)

Popular and new games appear on the corresponding sections in our homepage. The sidebar provides shortcuts to your profile, such as your To-Play List, your Reviews and your Likes.

The banner on top lets you browse the community by checking out the games database, popular lists, reviews, news about the gaming world and more.
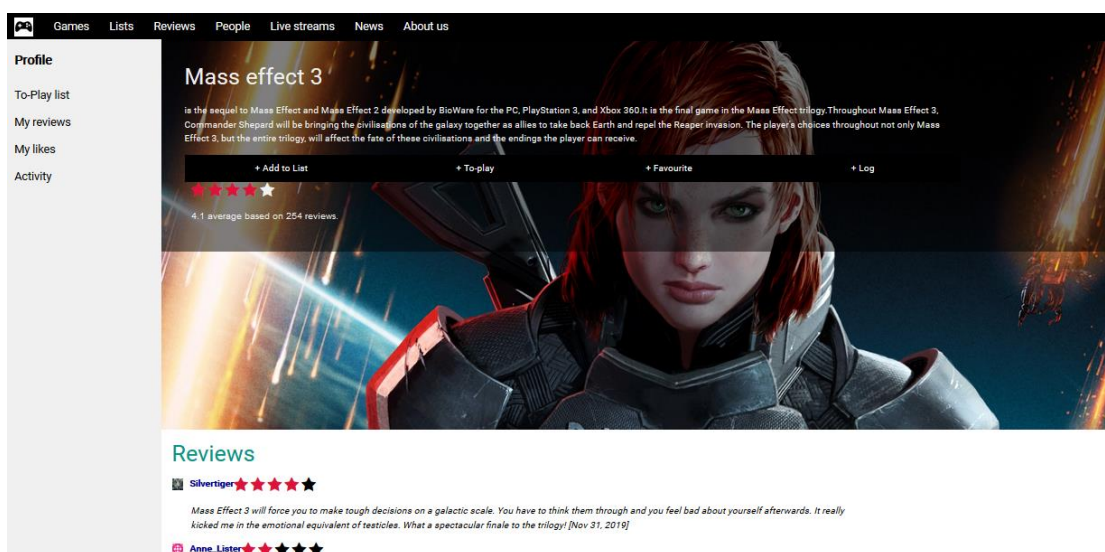

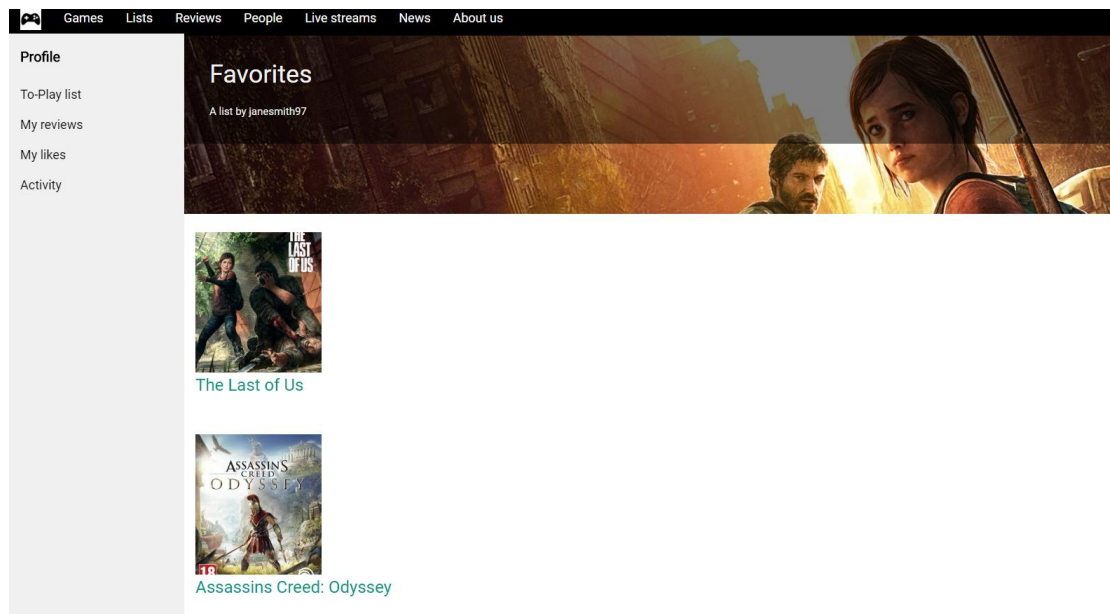

Your profile page (link)

You can choose a unique username and a profile pic for your profile. Your lists appear here, as well as your reviews.

Let's check out a game page (link)

Each game page includes a description of the game, the average user rating, user reviews as well as buttons that allow you to either: log the game, add it to your favorites or to a list.
